In this podcast series titled Other Stories, we continue our conversations on the relationship between art and human mobility, which we started with the exhibition.

The podcast series examines this relationship with academics, artists and NGO stakeholders under three themes:

1. The effects of art on raising awareness and policy making on migration, solidarity and living together with immigrants;
2. Global good practices and lessons learned about the arts and integration of immigrants and social cohesion;
3. Such good practices in the Turkish context.

My "Diary from the border" Comics: Silvia Aru

Silvia Aru is an assistant professor of Economic and Political Geography at the University of Turin. Her research interests encompass migration policies and their socio-spatial impacts and related issues of justice and socio-spatial inclusion/exclusion. In this episode, we mainly talk about her two projects titled "Eufemia" and My "Diary from the border" Comics.

"Actor in a Second Language": Bogdan Mihai Florea

Dr. Florea has written a PhD thesis titled "Actor in a Second Language" at Department of Theatre at University of Bristol. The thesis discusses emigrant actors and acting in a 2nd language in the context of the practice-based research conducted with Nu Nu Theatre, a company that focuses its work on the question of who a Second-Language Actor is and who he/she can become.

Performing Migrant Stories: Elizabeth Kwant

Elizabeth Kwant talks about her project titled 'In Transit' where she performs migrants' stories in key sites across Europe. Elizabeth Kwant lives and works in Manchester. From 2015-2019 she founded and curated Zellij Arts, an artist led project exhibiting the work of emerging artists from the Middle East, North Africa and diaspora.
